Located eight miles from Maryville, Tennessee, Montvale Springs is nestled at the foot of Chilhowee Mountain adjoining Great Smoky Mountains National Park. Montvale offers 354 acres of natural beauty, perfect for a private event, training, or retreat.

In the mid-1800's, Montvale Springs was the site of the 125-room Seven Gables Hotel which, at the height of its popularity as a spa, became known as the Saratoga of the South. Since the 1930's, the property has served as a camp, welcoming hundreds of campers each year. Now operated by Harmony Family Center, Montvale Springs is a space of healing and growth for the children and families who visit for therapeutic camps and activities throughout the year.

Harmony offers retreats and professional development at the Montvale Springs property. We incorporate neuroscience informed activities that are centered in the wisdom of nature-based practices.
